

2. An adjustable side closure for a garment having front and rear panels, which comprises:

a strap having opposite ends, one end being secured to the rear panel, and the other free end extending over the front panel; and means for releaseably securing the free end of said strap to the front panel in adjustable overlapping relationship.